(December 29th -- Dallas, TX) MetroTex Association of REALTORS® hosted their annual Awards & Charity Event in December to present awards for sales performance, association involvement and charitable work throughout the year. The Lois Hair Bernays Salesperson of the Year Award names the Realtor who has demonstrated great achievements in both their sales and contributions to the real estate community in 2014.

Tommy Wooten with the Coldwell Banker Residential Frisco office topped an incredible field of competition to be named 2014 Realtor of the Year. Wooten won because of his impressive contributions to the real estate community, locally and on a state and national level, while maintaining a high level of personal professional success.

In 2014, Wooten became involved on the state and national Realtor level at the Realtor Party Convention in Washington DC, the National Association of REALTORS® Leadership Summit in Chicago, the National Association of REALTORS® convention in New Orleans and by serving on a task force at the Texas Association of REALTORS® level to provide young professionals throughout Texas greater opportunities to become involved with the Association.

On a local level, Wooten served as the chairman of the MetroTex Young Professionals Network (YPN). Under his leadership, YPN hosted events and raised money for Vogel Alcove and the Jubilee Center. As YPN chair, Wooten developed an innovative sports-focused education series for members of MetroTex that included participation with the Dallas Stars, FC Dallas and the Dallas Mavericks. He also led YPN to greater interaction with other young professional organizations in North Texas to bridge partnerships with professionals not in the real estate industry. Wooten was a finalist for the prestigious Realtor of the Year McSam Award from the Dallas Builders Association and is serving on the Realtor Advisory Board for Windsong Ranch in Prosper.

"Tommy's impact on MetroTex Young Professionals Network in 2014 was incredible. He really pushed YPN to focus on networking by building relationships both inside and outside the industry while also expanding the reach of the committee within MetroTex and the real estate community at large. His focus on innovation serves him well in all aspects of his life and business," said Joe Mazza, MetroTex Director of Marketing and YPN staff liaison.

Wooten is also a proud member of Dallas Real Estate Ministries, an organization that helps support real estate professionals in a positive environment. He is an active member at Covenant Church in Carrollton where he serves as a train driver to provide transportation throughout the campus for children.

Wooten is a member of Coldwell Banker's International Sterling Society because of his multi-million dollar sales volume. While he works throughout Dallas-Fort Worth, he specializes in the area in which he grew up, including Little Elm, Frisco, Carrollton, The Colony and Prosper, Texas with an emphasis on new construction homes.
